Program for programming of the building contractor for keeping records of building Periodic (program) Shareware (Shareware) Program/Solution for programming of the contractor for keeping records of the building Periodic (program) Portable terminals such as cellular phones have rapidly increased in popularity. As a result, the number of text messages and photographs exchanged between the cellular phone and a destination device, such as a home, car, or workstation, has increased. For example, a user can transmit an SMS text message to a destination telephone number or access a picture, video, or audio file stored on the cellular phone. However, text messages and pictures are not easily shared over a network, and there are no easy and quick methods for transmitting other content, such as audio, video, and other multimedia content, from a portable device to a destination device. For example, a user may want to quickly send a text message to a destination telephone number to inform the recipient of some event. Alternatively, the user may want to quickly share pictures or other content with a recipient. However, the user may have to remember multiple telephone numbers to send text messages and pictures to several different destinations. Furthermore, the user may need to locate the different destination telephone numbers and manually type the corresponding text messages. Alternatively, the user may have to input the destination telephone numbers into an application on the portable device. However, most portable devices may only provide the user with the ability to make telephone calls and send text messages to a recipient telephone number. Some portable devices may provide the user with the ability to send text messages to a telephone number of a recipient, but the user may have to initiate the telephone call manually or copy a destination telephone number from an application on the portable device and manually enter the destination telephone number into the application. One of the disadvantages of using the existing technologies is that the user has to remember multiple telephone numbers to send text messages to different destinations. If a user has to remember multiple telephone numbers, the user may not use the existing technology because the user may forget one or more telephone numbers or miss the opportunity to quickly send a text message or a picture to a particular destination. Another disadvantage of using the existing technologies is that the user has to input the destination telephone numbers into an application on the portable device. The user has to open the application, find the telephone number corresponding to a particular destination, and manually enter the telephone number into the application. Therefore, the user has to open the application on the portable device, which may be inconvenient and time consuming./ Licensed to Elasticsearch under one or more contributor * license agreements.
