This image has been deprecated. The old docker tag is: aufs/opensuse-leap:15.1 rhel6 A: Disclaimer: I'm the Docker community manager, so I'm a bit biased :-). This is for many people a really common question. This is because this tag has only been around for a few months. I can assure you that this is not going to be the default behavior for a long time yet. There are a few reasons for this. Lots of people use Windows 7 or Windows 8 and I believe the Windows 7 tag was created for those, because Windows 8 and 10 are incompatible with Win 7. If you do want to use Windows 7, you can download the Windows 7 container from here: It is then as easy as downloading the.msi from here and using the script from here to remove all Windows 10 related files that are created by Windows Update (as the OS is in fact also called Windows 10): I would expect that this tag will be gone in three to four months max. News Carbon for Communities The CarboNexus project is facilitating the generation of the carbon asset flows for the CarboNexus region. In this way, the region can prepare a high quality carbon accounting and budget tool kit, which includes information on both emissions and removals. The toolkit is an important step towards improving carbon accounting and policy making.
